THE MYSTERY OF THE WOGGLE BUG MIGHT HAVE BEEN SETTLED LONG AGO IF SOME ONE HAD ONLY THOUGHT TO HAVE ASKED THE MYSTERY OF THE WOGGLE BUG READS THEM.

VERY HARD LUCK.

(After Sievenson—a long ways after.)

PREFACE.

This is a story full of atmosphere. In fact, it was, started when snow was on the ground and icicles hanging from the finishing touches, the guiters are full of rain, and his wife is making it pretty hot. There is little plot, but the atmosphere is all right, and atmosphere stories are fashionable.

It was raining.

CHAPTER ONE.

It was raining atmosphere.

As Archie Smiff strolled nomelantly across the street loward the particular cost in the street loward the particular blue of her eyes vide with the say, as the dripping clouds concealed in all treir, cruel delight the twinking start, all treir cruel delight the twinking start in the verdant growth of the park, where tired ones might sit and coo in the shadows of the great elm trees.

Lucilie's blue eyes als dripped.

"What is the matter?" quothed Archie, his big heart going out to the beautiful gift.

CHAPTER TWO.

Lucille's blue eyes also dripped.

"What is the matter?" quothed Archie, his big heart roing out to the beautiful girl.

CHAPTER TWO.

Archie was right.
She had lost something, and as a street car hurried down town with an awful noise he made up his mind he would help her.

Two thousand years before this the Smiff and the Joneskie families had crossed the Delaware with Washington.

Had the boat upset there would have been no occasion for putting this nariative upon the pages of histor.

Now the younger scions of these two old families were drawing closer and closer together.

Lucille was a beautiful creature. Her rope-colored halr was kept in place by a piece of her well-made tallor gown of instance and the two the matter of the Elizabehan era, was not too long to conceal from view a small No. 6 white duck shoe, with red slockings.

As Archie looked upon the beautiful lace and the red bow and the tow hair, he felt a tug at his heart.

CHAPTER THREE.

"May I help you?"

The sound of his voice, musical as an eighteenth century pump, of the Queen anne style, caused the pretty blue eyes to look in his direction.

"I have lost my umbrella," she murmured, "and I'm afraid it will get wet. I wouldn't have that umbrella get wet for anything."

"I'm will lend you mine."

Then the rain came down in torrents and in the street. As the two young ones went home, close up under that umbrella, that night, "made and of coing out to the club."

OLD PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Improvements Make Beecher's Church Stranger to Old Timers.

Church Stranger to Old Timers.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK. Sept. 1.—11 will strike a pang into the hearts of many who have sat under the rare cloquence of Henry Ward Beecher to know that the historic Plymouth Church, on Brooklyn Heights, is undergoing a "renovation" which will largely change its interior aspect. Plymouth Church has always, teen typically suggestive of the old New England "meeting-house," both within and without. Sober colors formerly prevalled, suggestive of the severity of Puritan tenets. Now, what may be termed a "pigmented cheerfu ness" is to be introduced. It is predicted that when Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, about a month hence, after his long vacation eteps again into the pulpit where the unmatched Beecher, an oratorical Shakespeare, played upon all the human emotions, he will not know his own church. Dr. Hillis has been making a tour of Alaska, visiting especially the gold camps on the Yukon river He is expected to preach again in New York on the first Sunday in October.

War, Romance and "Dough."

War, Romance and "Dough."

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

MARRYVILLE, MO., Sept. 1.—Mrs.

"Hal" Struck, of this place, a bride of a few weeks, has fallen heir to property worth several hundred thousand deliars left to her by her grandmether, Mrs. Lydia Hubbard, of New York.

Mrs. Struck was formerly a trimmer for a local milliner. She is 44 years vid. and her husband is lass than 10. Hs is a commercial traveler.

Mrs. Struck's grandmother lived in the South before the war. Northern raiders burned her home and deacroyed her property, and her daughter, the mother of Mrs. Struck, fell in love with the captain of the raiders, ran away and was married to him. The mother disowned her and never allowed her inher house, although she herself afterward was married to a wealthy man rand moved to New York.

At her death she ignored her daughter, who is still living, and left her entire estate by will to the grand-aughter.

NO ONE WILLING

TO MARRY THEM Girl Proposes to Man of Ninety-

two Years and Is Promptly, Accepted.

Accepted.

(Spécial to The Times-Dispatch.)

AMHIBRST, MASS., Sppt. 1.—A marriage license was issued vesterfair to Oren Williams, of South Amherat, who is ninety-two years of age, and Miss Alice Luia Baker, an attractive on any of twenty-four. The town clerk attempted to dissuade Mr. Williams from taking cut the marriage license, but the aged lover insisted with all the ardor at his command that he would 'marry the gill in spite of the devil.'

Mr. Williams is a piliar of a South Amherst church and ordinarity mil' in manner to a degree beafting his age. The ceremony was to have "-an her-formed to-day, but several clergymen whom Mr. Williams invited to officiate declined to assume the responsibility. The match is a result of a leap year proposal made by Miss Baker. Mr. Williams advertised for a house-keeper and Miss Baker, who appned for the position, suggested marriage. The idea pleased the fancy of Mr. Williams, who expressed himself as delighted to find a woman who did not consider his years a barrier to matrimony. When Williams's wife died severally years ago relatives in the West attempted to have a conservator appainted over his estate, which is estimated at 415.00. The courts refused to sanction the recedence.

Thorough Instruction in ancient and mod-ern languages, pure and applied sciences, history, philosophy and law. In Septem-ber, 1994, new courses in free-hand and mechanical drawing and in practical me-
